

Puddle cello

The Sunshower Arcade

Kind #52 / weather-organ-puddle-cello

Shallow resonator

A still puddle provides an illustrative body for the low voice.

Pluck-like ripple

One small impact sends a compact set of ripples across the surface.

Reflected answer

A softer secondary ripple is shown beside the fading main disturbance.

Three illustrative views of one imagined kind; not life stages. Images are not to a common scale.

Habitat

Separate shallow puddles beside the Sunshower Arcade's dry passage. Their reflected surfaces carry the imagined low dancing line.

Appearance & role

A water-based instrument fiction, pictured here through a resonant pool and its ripples. The cello name describes the rounded plucked voice, not an animal or plant.

Character & musical voice

A low root is followed by a fifth and a quieter octave reply; the last bar holds G. Short, springy pizzicato with a reflected answer; G major, 132 BPM, 3/4.
